Dear teacher,

I am writing to you because I won't be attending school for quite a bit. A good start comma please smallest simile Firstly, my dad got a great job in boiling Australia and we have moved into a huge house like a mansion. It is my dad's cousin's house. He is a acrobatic plane flyer. How rhetorical question would you feel going upside down in a plane?

So the next day my dad went to his new job and I went to my cousin's house, plane and we had a fly.

ps 3 or 3 well done Then suddenly, the plane made a big BANG like a gun shot and we landed on a magical, tropical, colorful island. We landed as light as a feather on a mysterious island there was a million things flying in the air one of them kicked me.

But we thought how are we going to get back to Australia? Then we felt something pulling us in the air. Guess what it was? it was them little things in the air. They took us to a tree house + if we went out of the tree house then

I hope people like rescuers will come and save us from a helicopter.

P.S I miss you
